Now in its fifth year, the West Virginia Conference on Entrepreneurship has received rave reviews from past attendees.

"This conference was the jump-start I need to rejuvenate my entrepreneurial spirit."

"The most useful training that I have ever attended. Period."

"Not only was the conference great, with awesome speakers and helpful instruction, the networking opportunities were tremendous. I made tons of new contacts."

The 2006 West Virginia Conference on Entrepreneurship features:

- ✓ Keynote speaker Harry Beckwith, brand-builder for clients such as Target and Microsoft and best-selling author of What Clients Love and Selling the Invisible. Beckwith has sold more than one million books and has been on the Business Week bestseller list for three years.
- ✓ The Funniest Tax Guy in America – Ed Lyon – on building your wealth
- ✓ Practical, hands-on seminars on brand building and wealth building

Who should attend?

- ✓ Anyone who owns a small business—or is thinking of launching a new business
- ✓ Professionals who provide products and services to small businesses
- ✓ Those with the desire to learn and improve their business and leadership skills
